ANIMATED MAGAZINE BRINGS CELEBRITIES TO ROLLINS

Hamilton Holt
President of Rollins College, formerly Editor of "The Independent!"

The Animated Magazine for the year of 1938 will open its covers on the little stand at the corner of Rollins beautiful campus before an audience of thousands if the weather is propitious on Sunday afternoon, February 20th at 2:30 P.M., and indoors at the Annie Russell Theatre, Knowles Memorial Chapel and Recreation Hall, if rain should spoil this unique outdoor festival of wit and wisdom.

Historians of the future will describe the Animated Magazine in such a way that we read of the famous symposia of the wise and great in other ages—discussions of Socrates with his Athenian audiences, the hillside discourses of Jesus, the cloistered assemblies of the learned in the Middle Ages, the coffee house philosophers of Dr. Johnstone's time—all moments in the cultural history of the race when the fountains of the soul show out their urgent aspirations into the sight of men to give them new hope and courage for the attainment of their ideals.

PRIVATE GARDENS OPEN TO ANNUAL CLUB TOUR

On February 22nd, next Tuesday, takes place the Annual Garden Tour of Winter Park at which time opportunity is given to visit several of Winter Park's choicest private gardens. This year invitations have been accepted to visit the following gardens and they will be viewed in the order named: Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McMillan, Virginia Drive; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Fownes, Maitland; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Barbour, Drexel Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Harris, 911 Seminole Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Joshua C. Chase, 985 Palmer Avenue. BRAHMS SYMPHONY AT ORCHESTRA CONCERT

An outstanding feature of Founders' Week at Rollins College with which it is affiliated will be the second annual concert of the Symphony Orchestra of Central Florida, next Wednesday evening, February 23 at 8:15 in the Winter Park High School Auditorium. The program will be uncommonly entertaining and enriching. Under the conductorship of Alexander Bloch the orchestra will play three numbers of satisfying variety and musical quality, beginning with a string composition—Variations by the Russian composer Arensky on a theme from "Tchaikovsky's. It is certain, a characteristically plaintive folk-song. Next will come the light and sparkling Overture from..."

BRIEF SKETCHES OF THE CONTRIBUTORS

HENRY R. LUCE
Who hasn’t heard the success story of Henry R. Luce who at the age of 25, fourteen years ago, with other young men not long out of Yale, conceived the idea of publishing a weekly news magazine whose newsmen would report all the news straight, true, and reliable, in a manner so spryly that fastidious have been in danger of being broken up in their struggle to lay hands on it first, so eager have they been to read of names that made news; a great tycoon “resting his old bones on the Riviera;” “wizened little Daniel Carter Beard;” the Emperor of Siam, “a little, yellow, slant-eyed man.” Or they may have wished to enrich their vocabularies with newly coined words. As their latest objective the editors of Time promise “to make it fun to follow the news of 1938,” and if they can do this with the Four Horses abreast, kudos to them!

RALPH ADAMS CRAM
Everyone visiting the Knowles Memorial Chapel of Rollins College associated it with the architect, Ralph Adams Cram, who considers it one of his most satisfactory achievements. Also at Princeton, Bryn Mawr, Mt. Holyoke, and Wellesley until their buildings are in ruins, his name will be linked with them, as well as with St. John the Divine and St. Thomas in New York and the East Liberty Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh. Among his many books on architecture are “The Substance of Gothic,” “Walled Towns,” “The Catholic Church and Art,” and “My Life in Architecture.” For his achievements he is honored abroad, and in this country has received honorary degrees from Princeton, Williams, Yale, and Johns Hopkins.

As a thinker on the subjects of religion, philosophy, and international relations Mr. Cram’s writings are provocative and have aroused wide interest. An Anglicalist, a member of the Church Unity Octave Council, the object of which is to bring about a reunion of the Episcopal and Catholic Churches. As a social critic in “The End of Democracy” his thesis is contained in the title. He believes we are witnessing the end of democracy, but is not dismayed by this, because he does not consider democratic forms an indispensable part of civilization. A change in philosophy, or in the human spirit, is what he calls for as the basis of true reform. Suggestive titles of his magazine articles are “Back to What Constitution?” and “Invitation to Monarchy.” That beauty is one of the ways religion is a theory of Mr. Cram. He believes that if the Church would enter upon a consistent campaign for the restoration of beauty where it pre-eminently belongs, an increased religious fervor would result as evidenced in churches that have been restored to their original beauty.

ANNY RUTZ
Anny Ruts is a young woman whose personality and family traditions have pre-eminently fitted her to take the part of the Virgin Mary in the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Germany. Three hundred years ago an ancestor, Jakob Rutz, was the Christus in the first Passion Play enacted in this village. Since 1811 the music composed by her great-great-uncle, August Rütten, has been used in its presentation. As the Virgin Mary in 1890 and again in 1934, Miss Rutz is the only person who has been chosen twice for this part. Miss Rutz came to Rolls two years ago to join her sister, Mia Ruts, a student in Rollins, and has since been lecturing throughout the country.

RICHARD BURTON
Richard Burton, poet, critic, and lecturer, is a man whose wide knowledge has endeared him to his students without number, not only at Rollins, but also in the University of Chicago, Sarah Lawrence College, and in the lecture halls throughout the country. He is the author of over twenty books of verse and of essays in literary criticism, the latest being a volume of poetry, “Higher than Hills.” During an active life he has been editor of publications too numerous to mention. At present he holds the positions of editor of the Living Literature Series, of the Warner Library, and in the lecture halls throughout the country. He is the author of over twenty books of verse and of essays in literary criticism, the latest being a volume of poetry, “Higher than Hills.”

We admire Rollins, too.

ROLLINS FACULTY and STUDENTS are among our most staunch admirers.

a Rhodes scholar to Christ Church, Oxford, where he received the degrees of B.A. and M.A. Having prepared for a career in the Church at the Virginia Theological Seminary he became rector of Grace Church, Amherst, for seven years, and faculty director of religious activities in Ambrose College. On leaving Amherst he was made an honorary D.D. of that college and a life trustee. Since then he has been rector of Trinity Church, Boston, where he has proved himself a worthy successor of the great Phillips Brooks.

DALE CARNEGIE

Lowell Thomas gives a striking picture of the man whose book "How To Win Friends" has swept the country:

"A movement for adult education is sweeping over the nation today; and the most spectacular picture of the man whose book "How To Win Friends" has swept the country is unique—a striking combination of public speaking, salesmanship, human relations and applied psychology. A slave to no dogma, to no creed, as Mr. Carnegie has developed a philosophy of human relations and applied psychology, which has been a best seller around the world."

"Much of my success has been due to training under Dale Carnegie, the man who has listened to me and criticized my work."

MARJORIE KINNAN RAWLINGS

An intimate knowledge of the Big Scrub in Florida has made it possible for Marguerite Kinnan Rawlings to describe it so graphically in her novel, "South Moon Under." "I know the Scrub intimately," she writes, "I have seen it in all seasons, and have traveled by small boat the full length of its boundaries," that is, the St. Johns River, and Ochlockonee River, the author has hunted in the Big Scrub and been lost in it, and while hunting recently she spent a night up in a tree, but this is nothing to a vigorous, out-of-doors woman like Miss Rawlings, who now owns and runs a large orange grove six miles from Hawthorne, Fla., which she says is "way out in the sticks."

Mrs. Rawlings is the author of another novel, "Golden Apples," and many short stories that have appeared in the Forum, Collier's, and many other national and international magazines.

"Golden Apples," her second book, is still being read by enthusiastic freshmnan. Mrs. Bacon knows girls, and among a number of books written especially for them are "Luck of Lowry," "Golden Apples," and "The Door of Opportunity." For ten years she directed the editing of The Girl Scout Magazine and also edited the Girl Scouts' official handbook publications.

"The Memoirs of a Baby," a satire on modern methods of child training, became a best seller the year it was published. Of her novels written for adults the best known are "Today's Daughter," "Open Market," and "Medusa's Head." Mrs. Bacon has written a book of verses, "Truth o' Women," and was the winner of the prize offered by the League of Nations for an international essay.

JOHN PALMER GAVIT

As well known in New York as in Winter Park, John Palmer Gavit chooses to spend his winters in this charming little town, where he lectures, writes and takes part in its activities. He is an ardent supporter of the Symphony Orchestra of Winter Park and many articles in regard to it appear in metropolitan and local papers. At present, Mr. Gavit is a member of the Survey Group and the Survey Graphic. In the past his newspaper experience has included the position of city editor of the Hartford Evening Post, work with the Associated Press for ten years, and representatives of the New York evening Post in visiting at least thirty colleges and universities here and abroad as a non-professional observer. The articles resulting from this study were later published in the book, "College."

INDIAN PRINCESS TO SPEAK
Ataloa, Chickasaw Princess, born and reared in Old Indian Territory, Oklahoma, graduate of the University of Redlands, California, and an M.A. from Columbia, will speak and sing at the Woman's Club on Wednesday morning, Feb. 23, 10:30 A.M. Admission fifty cents.

Ataloa is a fine artist, whose chief work is to interpret age-old songs, dances, legends, and religious ceremonies of different tribes of Indians to later Americans. She has written and told stories about the "cullered folks" around her. But "Enchiel" was not intended for publication, the author being content in the joy of writing and illustrating these stories for her son.

ELVIRA GARNER

Elvira Garner of Sanford, Fla., leaped into prominence on the publication of "Ezekiel," her first book, a thin volume of stories about a small negro boy, his sister, Ezekiel, Mrs. Garner’s chief occupation is "sitting on the floor, surrounding with cloth, paper, wire, paint, and what-not, making marble" and "the characters about whom she writes, and these tiny figures are just as clever and revealing in their way as the stories.

ARTHUR GUITERMAN

As surely as the winter season comes around so do Arthur Guiterman and his talented wife, whether it is for a visit of days, weeks or months, and you can hear their friends on all sides say, "Do you know that the Guitermans are here?"

None of the writers about writers have been able to give a satisfactory explanation of humor, but why all the bother about the ingredients when the essence is to be found and enjoyed in Mr. Guiterman’s books of verse, which include "Divina Commedia of the Pleiades," "The Mirthful Lyre," and "A Ballad Maker’s Pack." His latest published work is "Death and Israel Putnam."

It is doubtful whether readers of his verse could possibly have as much fun as he does in writing it. He may surprise the members of the Poetry Society by reading to them about Samuel and the camel or by gently satirizing this state community as in the following verses, which appeared in the New York Times under the title "Winter Park."

"In many towns of lesser sort
You hear a constant switching-swatting
For people’s means of self-support
Is taking in each other’s washing.
But where cultured folks reside—
Or thus my simple soul conjectures—
We’re almost wholly occupied
In sitting through each other’s lectures."

COLLEGE DEBATERS
FOR TUESDAY EVENING
On February 22nd at 8 P.M., in the Congregational Church, a debate will be held between the University of Pennsylvania and Rollins College. This promises to be an interesting event of the Tuesday evening course and the Founders' Week program.

The subject was chosen by popular vote by the leading universities and colleges and is being debated throughout the United States.

Resolved: That the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce Arbitration of all Industrial Disputes.

Miss Margorie Chindahl and Miss Edna Harmon, Rollins debaters of outstanding ability defend the affirmative side and will meet a picked team of young men from the University of Pennsylvania who are traveling through the South debating in many of the leading colleges.

The audience will be invited to participate in the discussion and questions will be answered by the speakers. A free will offering will be taken.

NEW YORK COMPANY IN "THE QUEEN'S HUSBAND"
One of the theatrical treats offered by the Annie Russell Series will be the presentation of Robert Sherwood's amusing satire, "The Queen's Husband" by the American Repertory Theatre of New York on Friday evening, February 25, in the Annie Russell Theatre at Rollins College.

The American Repertory Company, under the direction of Jose Abbott and Pauline Frederick, consented to act in an advisory capacity. "The Queen's Husband" has a mixture of comedy, excitement, sentiment and clear reasoning that few plays possess. It is a cross section of all the various forms of government that are endeavoring to convince humanity that each is the best for humanity, but not for a moment does Mr. Sherwood allow his play to become propaganda, keeping it at all times in a satirical vein and offering a solution to all present turmoil. The play enjoyed eight months on Broadway.

The Friday Morning Reading Group will meet on February 25, with Mrs. John Martin, Mrs. Harvey E. Chase will review her son's latest book, "The Tyranny of Words" by Stuart Chase.

BRAHMS SYMPHONY

Mozart's famous opera, "The Magic Flute," first performed in Vienna nearly 150 years ago, but in America not until 1904, when Moliët conducted it at the Metropolitan; its popularity in this country never has waned.

The preface to the speaking of the last half of the concert will be the Symphony No. 1, the C-Minor, opus 68, by Johannes Brahms. Brahms composed four symphonies; it was hard to say which of these is either best or most popular; but this is the one which Hans von Bulow proposed to call "the tenth symphony," as the only possible successor to the immortal nine of Beethoven.

As usual this season, on Monday evening, this time at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Martin, the members of the Symphony Society will have the privilege of hearing Mrs. Blanche Bulow, wife of the conductor, explain the forthcoming program, with illustrations and interpretations on the piano. Those who have heard her on the two previous occasions need no assurance as to her interest and enhancement of the enjoyment of the concert itself.

The plan was drawn by Miss Faith Jones, who is a landscape architect. Many beautiful objects of art were loaned the committee, such as a Madonna and Child from Mrs. George Noyes, and a beautiful tiled bench which formerly was in Miss Annie Russell's garden, was loaned by Mrs. John Carty. The Steward-Mellon Company loaned the Spanish tile and Mr. Foster from the Tropical Arts studio furnished the tropical trees and plants.
