THE ROMANTIC AGE TO CLOSE THEATRE SERIES

The Annie Russell Series will close its sixth season on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, March 25 and 26, when the Annie Russell Company presents A. A. Milne's gay young comedy, "The Romantic Age," under the direction of Dorothy Lockhart.

The cast includes Cathie Bailey, Newton Merrill, Julie Trowbridge, Mary Acher, William Barry, Dudley Darlington, Sandy Trowbridge, Kate March Smith, and Peggy Bashford.

In this concluding production of the Annie Russell Series Director Dorothy Lockhart is offering an especially attractive combination of sincere comedy and a cast of the most talented young people on the local stage. The preference of Winter Parkians for the lighter type of entertainment should be fully satisfied with "The Romantic Age."

THE "EIGHT" SHOW NEW PICTURES AT GALLERY

The show exhibition starting Saturday, March 19th through the 26th of March at the Winter Park Gallery will be works by the EIGHT artists including a pastell portrait of Miss Norma Austin by Zac Shippman. Miss Austin is from Columbia, South America, and is spending part of the season here with her family.

Faith F. Jones is to exhibit a portrait of Dr. Lawrence W. Strong of Winter Park. These two paintings have just recently been completed. One of the main ideas of the Gallery was to make the EIGHT paintings and it has worked.

There will be other canvasses here with her family.

HONORS FOR JOHN RAE

Professor John Rae of the Rollins College Faculty has recently received a national honor.

With offices at 285 Madison Avenue, New York, the Children's League of America has been organized, the object being to collect books for children, in order to give the books and their authors wider publicity and to promote interest in worthwhile Juvenile Literature.

On the approved list are many books written and illustrated by John Rae and in addition, Mr. Rae has been asked to act as a sponsor for the newly organized Children's League of America. Having been listed in "Who's Who" for many years, Mr. Rae is also listed in "Principal Poets of America," is a member of the Illustrator's Society of New York, and of the Federated Arts of America.

EDGAR C. LEONARD

Mr. Leonard was born in 1869, a grandson of J. G. Cotrell, the founder of the firm of which he afterwards became a partner. His parents were Daniel Leonard and Mary Elizabeth Cotrell. His uncle, Edgar Cotrell, for whom he was named, and his father Daniel Leonard formed the partnership under the name of Cotrell and Leonard, a business which this month celebrates its 100th anniversary.

He was a graduate of Albany Boy's Academy and Williams College. With his brother, the late Gardner Cotrell Leonard, he introduced the use of academic costume to the college, his class of 1886.

An audience of interested listeners greeted Mr. Ralph C. Erskine Monday evening at the Woman's Club where he gave a most interest- ing illustrated talk on the value of antiques chiefly as our inheritance in design. Mr. Erskine, founder of the well-known firm of Erskine-Danforth, of New York and Chicago is a writer on Crafts- manship in Good Housekeeping and other magazines and in his talk he said that "each community should turn to local craftsmen to have their furniture made. The people will gain immeasurably from personal contacts with good antiques as a basis of design for the furniture of their homes." Mr. Erskine, with his wife, came down from Tryon, N. C., where they have a beautiful place, and were entertained by Col. and Mrs. Edgar C. Leonard at the Seminole Hotel.

Mr. Leonard was particularly active in the direction of the retail store and in the days when Europe was more important as a fashion center made trips to obtain the latest fashion merchandise for sale in the store to the women of the Capital district.

A well-known figure in Albany, in his younger days Mr. Leonard was active in many civic works. For several years he was secretary of the Y M C A, and helped in fund-raising activities. He was a trustee of Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida.

He was a member of the following societies: St. Anthony, Sons of the Revolution, Mayflower Association, Colonial Wars, and a member of the Fort Orange Club of Albany and the Williams Club of New York City.

In 1935 he bought the interest of his remaining partner, Mr. J. A. Perkins, and at that time, with characteristic foresight, incorporated the firm in order to perpetuate its existence.

He is survived by his widow, Emily Nottell Leonard, two daughters by his first wife Basile Woodworth of Albany, N. Y., the Princess de Dzhumakovsky of New York City, and Mrs. Katherine L. Parkins of Albany, and by two sisters, Miss Mary L. Leonard of Winter Park, Florida and Mrs. Stanley Morse of Sumter, South Carolina.

Exhibit of Etchings By Cadwallader Washburn

The Art Department of the Woman's Club is presenting another unique exhibition to the public, in the dry-point etchings of Cadwallader Washburn, which will be open to the public from Tuesday, March 22 to Friday, March 25, inclusive.

Mr. Washburn's work is internationally famous; specimens are in the Luxembourg in Paris, the Ryles Museum in Amsterdam, the British Museum, London, also in many of our own museums and galleries. While a native of Minnesota, Mr. Washburn is in reality a New Englander, his ancestors having been prominent in the history of Maine. Deprived of speech and hearing, he devoted his life to painting and etching, though his handicaps have not prevented his traveling all over the world. He has lived in North Africa, in Japan in the South Sea Islands, in Spain, in Mexico, and at present he calls the Canary Islands his home. His sister, Mrs. Elbert Francis Baldwin, has been spending some time in Winter Park and is kindly lending us her brother's etchings.

During the past winter Mr. Washburn's etchings and paintings have been exhibited at the Art Club in Washington, the Dall and Richards Galleries in Boston, the Art Museum at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine.

Reminiscence of Rembrandt, in breadth of treatment, his heads are still strongly his own. John Whistler in sensitive treatment, his work has still its own charm and illassiveness. Having studied under Sorolla in Spain, his work bears some traces of that master's influence. Himself a scientist of note, his work shows his insight into nature. Most interesting are his studies of a man with three horses ploughing a field overlooking the sea. Yet to the majority of people his heads will remain longest in memory.

ARTISTS TO SHOW THEIR TECHNIQUE TO CLUB

At its meeting at 3 o'clock on Friday, March 25, the Woman's Club will hear from two artists, Miss Ruth Boris Swett, a distinguished young etcher, who will "pull a proof," showing the audience how an etching is made from the copper plate. During the last few years her work with the Florida longleaf pines has won for Miss Swett enviable notice among etchers. As Miss Swett has studied the work of Cadwallader Washburn as one of her masters, on her own way to achievement in the art, it will be of great interest to the Club members to see Mr. Washburn's etchings on the same day.

Mary Aldrich Fraser, Vice-president of the Orlando Art Association, is a sculptor whose work is found in the Orthodox Church of Saint John the Divine, N. Y. City, The National Cathedral, Washington, and many other noted edifices in this country. She is a member of all the great National Art organizations of America and the Club is greatly honored that she will demonstrate for them the first steps in making a model of a statue, as she explains her art.

This is the first of a series of programs demonstrating the technique of the arts sponsored by the Art Department. Miss Irma G. Wendi, chairman, and the other members, Mrs. George T. Ladd and Mrs. Mary Aldrich Fraser, will present their next Art program April 22.

FINE PROGRAM FOR ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

Mendelssohn’s “Fingal’s Cave,” otherwise known as the Hebrides Overture.

The last half of the program will be wholly of Wagner, beginning with the third act of Tristal, then will come the Siegfried Idyll, composed for Wagner’s wife upon the birth of their son Siegfried, and the concert and the season will close with the ever-delightful prelude to Die Meistersinger.

On Monday evening immediately, as usual this season, at the home of Mrs. George Kraft, 541 Georgia Avenue, Mrs. Blanche Bloch, widow of the conductor, will give to the members of the Symphony Society her interesting and instructive preview of the program, which she will describe, analyze and illustrate on the piano.

Last evening at the same place the members of the Society had opportunity to see the series of sound-reels displaying with actual music the work of a full symphony orchestra, which have been given to Rollins College as aid to the public appreciation of music. The reels will be shown publicly for the first time next Tuesday evening the night before the symphony concert in the Winter Park Congregational Church, under the auspices of the Woman’s Union of the church. Admission will be free but there will be the usual silver collection for the work of the Union.

OTTO L. DOMMERICH

Otto L. Dommerich, one of the most prominent winter residents of Maitland passed away at his New York home, 60 East 69th St., on Thursday, March 10th, after a long illness. The deceased was in his 67th year.

Mr. Dommerich was a past owner of Hiwatha, the beautiful Dommerich Estate in Maitland, which was established by his father, L. F. Dommerich, one of the earliest trustees and benefactors of Rollins College. He was the senior member of the L. F. Dommerich and Company, brokers, in New York City.

Mr. Dommerich was the largest contributor to the Rollins Development Fund of 1926, a movement which made it possible for President Hamilton Holt to launch the “New Rollins”. He was generous to the college and was a supporter of the Florida Audubon Society, the Maitland Library, and other organizations in this community and the state.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters and one son, two brothers, L. W. Dommerich and A. L. Dommerich, and one sister, Mrs. Paul W. Hidenberg, who is a trustee of Rollins College.

Pacing Lake Maitland to the west, the new Weissenburger home enjoys the full beauty of glorious sunsets.

On the eastern slope of Lake Maitland, at the corner of Via Tuscany and Via Lugano, is the new Florida residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Weissenburger, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio. Solidly constructed of concrete blocks, and with large windows planned to frame every view of the lake, the house is an example of functional planning for year-round living, as well as of exterior beauty. Large oaks and pines give the lot a northern look, while an orange grove on the street side lends a typical Florida touch. In the spacious living room is a specially designed cast stone fireplace, and bookshelves are indirectly lighted with lumilines. On the north wall a sliding door leads to a large screened porch. In the dining room a bay window offers at each mealtime a changing aspect of the lake.

In the butler's pantry and kitchen the architect, Harold Hair, has incorporated every modern convenience to promote efficiency. The height of the building level above the lake permits a full-depth basement with an oil-burning furnace. The south wing is a complete guest apartment, living room, bedroom, bath and servants' quarters. Upstairs are three bedrooms and two tile baths. The large master bedroom and the south-west bedroom, each with three exposures, open on a screened iron balcony over the lake. A dumb waiter from the kitchen makes it possible to use the balcony as an upstairs dining room. The third bedroom opens on a well secluded sundeck. There are five large closets upstairs, three linen and storage cabinets, and a glazed cabinet indirectly lighted with lumilines in which the Weissenburgers display, for their own enjoyment, treasures they have collected around the world.

40TH ANNIVERSARY
Winter Parkians extend their congratulations to the popular Orlando store of Dickson-Ives which is now celebrating its fortieth anniversary in business at the corner of Central and Orange Avenues.

The event is being celebrated with an anniversary sale and during the week the entire store will be decorated with Florida's golden fruit. On Founder's Day, Tuesday, March 22nd, visitors will be served with orange juice and cake.

This hospitality in celebration of the firm's long continuance in business and public esteem is typical of Dickson-Ives, and is a further demonstration of the character of service and public interest that have made the store particularly popular with winter residents.

The founders of Dickson-Ives in 1898 established a policy of integrity and service that built up for them a harvest of good will as the years passed by. They also made it their business to give the people of Central Florida the newest and best in merchandise, reaching out to the market centers of the world to bring to the store the style and quality that would meet the demands of winter visitors from the larger cities of the North.

Florida's early Spring enables Dickson-Ives to present the new fashions of the year from six to ten weeks earlier than they appear in the North—another reason for the striking leadership of this Orlando store in style.

Winter Park salutes Dickson-Ives and pledges for many more years of successful service and prosperity.

Bruce Dougherty in Song Recital

Bruce Dougherty, Associate Professor of Voice in the Rollins Conservatory and tenor soloist of the Rollins Chapel Choir, gave an unusually interesting program at his recital in the Annie Russell Theatre last Wednesday. Mr. Dougherty again showed the fine qualities of style and good taste in singing which his admirers have heard with pleasure on the many occasions when he has been soloist. A friendly and attentive audience gave frequent evidence of their approval and called for several encores.

The program was as follows:
(1) Dank Sei Dir, Herr, (Handel); Dido's Lament (Purcell); Willst Du Dein Herz Mir Schenken (Bach); The Pretty Creature (Schubert); Light and beauty so as to convey to the beholder her delight in creating an emotions be felt. Miss Davenport was particularly effective and played his more serious piece with disarming earnestness. His voice was very clear and rousing. The three goddesses, digusted and gracious, though silent, looked lovely and made the audience wish they had been rescued from the pit much earlier in the evening.

MANY VISITORS ENJOY "PICTURES OF LIGHT"

The exhibition of "Pictures of Light" by Miss Rachel V. Hartley at Miss Hartley's canvases, says that one should bring to them his own personal conception of life and beauty and that in their exhibition his master was about to embark upon.

Sibley Varo made a handsome Hermans and U. T. Bradley as the fire-eating, bellowing God of war, not only made his poor servant, Bugaboo, played, by Warren Goldsmith, quake with fear, but the audience as well. Charles Armstrong was particular effective and played his more serious piece with disarming earnestness. His voice was very clear and rousing. The three goddesses, digusted and gracious, though silent, looked lovely and made the audience wish they had been rescued from the pit much earlier in the evening.

OLD GREEK PLAY SCORES A HIT

Baron d'Estournelles' adaptation of the old Aristophanes comedy "Irene" or "The Peace" afforded Winter Park's playgoers two evenings of real fun and merriment at the Annie Russell Theatre last week. The combination of a Greek comedy cleverly adapted to modern tempo, wholesome and spirited characterizations by a well chosen cast and artful, ingenious costumes brought about a most successful performance.

Edith Fairfax Davenport, well-known art critic, in urging the study of Miss Hartley's canvases, says that one should bring to them his own personal conception of life and beauty and that only thus can their real significance be felt. Miss Davenport states that Miss Hartley has made manifest a deep religious content and embodied her interpretation of light and beauty as so as to convey to the beholder her delight in creating and rendering these spiritually conceived canvases.
